

ACTIVITIES & ATHLETICS FACTS

Our community members value our facilities (buildings and fields) not only for the education provided to students during the day but also as gathering points for district residents of all ages outside of the school day and throughout the year. Our school district serves as a community center.

In fact, when looking at district facility use outside of the school day during the 2016-2017 school year, more than 80 community groups used district buildings and fields for a total of more than 9,800 hours. These organizations represent everything from youth sports associations and community arts groups to local government entities, clubs and organizations, and churches.

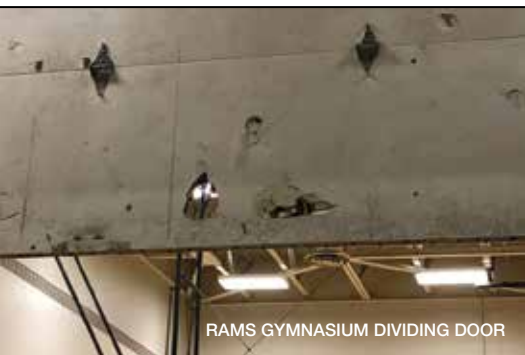

During the facilities planning process, participating community members and district staff evaluated the facilities and how they are used. It became apparent that in addition to addressing the buildings' physical conditions, the district also needed to find solutions to scheduling conflicts to ensure the robust participation in community groups and activities could continue.
